Through a cooperative arrangement, officials from Shelton State Community College and C. A. Fredd State Technical College announced plans today for a new project that would allow the two institutions to offer college courses this fall in Hale and Greene counties.

With this joint project, the two institutions begin the first of what college officials hope will be many new outreach programs for the people of West Alabama.

Classes in Hale County will be taught in the Hale County Area Vocational School in Greensboro, Alabama. In Greene County, the classes will be offered at the Eutaw Activity Center in Eutaw, Alabama.

Some of the classes scheduled to be offered Fall quarter include: English; residential wiring; psychology; auto mechanics; carpentry; masonry; welding; math; computer science; office administration and college orientation.

Registration will be from 3:30 -5:30 p.m. on September 17, and classes will begin on September 18. Classes will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5:30-7:35 p.m. and 7:40 -9:45 p.m.

This fall an accelerated high school program will also be offered at both locations.

Four sessions will be held during a three-day period in September in order for personnel from both institutions to help students with admissions, counseling, and financial aid. Sessions are scheduled for 3:30-5:30 p.m. on September 10; 3:30 -5:30 and 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. on September 11; and 3:30 -5:30 p.m. on September 13.

SHELTON STATE RECEIVES $326,136 GRANT FROM U. S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Shelton State Community College announced this week that the college will receive a $326,136 grant from the United States Department of Education.

The money received from this grant will enable Shelton State to continue its Student Support Services, a program designed to assist college freshmen, who are first generation college students and plan to transfer to and graduate from a four year institution.

Student Support Services provides students assistance in obtaining financial aid, academic and personal counseling, advising and course registration, tutoring, academic course monitoring and involvement in cultural enrichment programs and activities.

This is the fourth time over a 12-year period that the college has applied for, and received, funding for this program.

SHELTON STATE COMMUNITY COLLEGE TO OFFER TRUCK DRIVING TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM

Truck driving technology, a new program offered through Shelton State Community College, will be taught this fall at the college's Fifteenth Street Campus.

Truck driving technology will be taught for ten consecutive weeks, and four students will be enrolled in each class. The cost of the course is $737, and graduates of the program will receive a certificate in truck driving technology.

Michael Warren of Greensboro, Alabama has been named the new instructor for the program. From 1979-1986, Warren operated his own fleet of trucks and trailers and leased them to Dixie Midwest Express, Inc. and ICC Common Carrier located in Greensboro. During these seven years, Warren hauled refrigerated and dry freight commodities to 48 states.

This summer Warren completed the Third Party Examiners Course. With Warren as the instructor, Shelton State is now qualified as a third party examiner for the state's Commercial Drivers License Program. Beginning this October, all commercial vehicle drivers must be retested over the next 18 months in order to have a commercial drivers license. As a third part examiner, Shelton State can offer the CDL skills test to its students.

No previous truck driving experience is required to enter the truck driving program. Students who complete Shelton's truck driving technology program will receive all the training needed to earn a CDL, according to college officials.
